the amount of software that you have installed, the update might be quite large and could take some time. as mentioned earlier, the forum was temporarily down. as a result we had to offer our forum service in a limited way. edit(2018-11-20): the forum has been restored. also there was a strange communication that the service could be used freely in the future. this is not true. we can still only enable the forum at our discretion. we will announce further. the blog mentions more details.

qbittorrent v4.1.1 release was announced. note: this release doesn't make a difference to the windows installer. unless you upgraded to the beta of 4.1 or you had issues with the installer after being forced to downgrade or had other problems, this should be mostly a bugfix release. the stable series will have another version with more changes.

qbittorrent v4.1.0 release was announced. the macos builds will follow. the installer is not identical to the windows versions. it still needs to be tested on everything. the upcoming stable series should include more changes and additional testing. as mentioned above, the windows installer isn't identical to the installer for other platforms. it still
